SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

AM able this week, I am happy to say, to definitely set at rest the intense curiosity under which I know my readers have been laboring concerning the exact result of the negotiations of Prince Isenberg von Birstein for the hand of Miss Florence Pullman, says the "Saunterer," in Town Topics. As I stated some weeks ago, no less exalted a personage than the Emperor of Austria had interested himself in this proposed match, and it may now interest His Majesty, as well as less conspicuous people to learn how the affair came to be "off" for good. Papa Pullman, who is nothing if not businesslike from the ground up, took a long time to consider the matter, but when he reached his decision the Prince, so I understand, was not long in hearing of it. His Highness, so I am told, was politely but curtly informed by the multi-millionaire carman that he would never seek to influence his daughter's choice in her selection of a husband; that she would, however, receive but a nominal dowry if she should contract a marriage of which he did not approve, and that he could not conscientiously sanction her marriage to the Prince. I fancy that if the Prince had been a little better acquainted with the real character of the Duke of Pullman (as he is still called), he might have been tempted to run the chance of making a ten-strike, so to speak, by indignantly disclaiming anything like mercenary motives and continuing his appeal for the hand of his fair charmer irrespective of any financial conditions. For whatever else may be said of our American Duke, or, as I should say, our Chicago Duke, he has never yet been suspected of a lack of desire to treat his children handsomely, and I am reasonably confident that if the Prince had persisted and made Miss Pullman a Princess, leaving the future in the hands of his father-in-law, he would have found little reason to complain of a lack of generosity on the latter's part. It is, of course, possible, however, that the titled Austrian expected his friend, the Duke, to turn over to him his whole fortune, including all his rolling stock and real estate, together with the entire town of Pullman and its contents, as one condition of his condescension in making his daughter a Princess, in which event the princely fortitude with which he accepted the parental rejection of his suit is scarcely to be wondered at. It is with great unwillingness, of course, that I inform the people of Chicago that one of the belles of that thriving town is not to become a Princess this spring, but anything is better than suspense, and who knows, after all, but that another Prince may not put himself on the western matrimonial market before the year is out?

McVicker-Logan.
A quiet marriage ceremony was solemnized at 8:30 Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Rivett, Twenty-fourth and Sumner streets. The bride is Mrs. Rivett's mother, Mrs. Marion Logan, and the groom Mr. Robert McVicker of North Bend, Neb. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Doane in the presence of only the immediate friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. McVicker have a wide acquaintance in the state who join in extending congratulations. They left Monday for Los Angeles, Cal., where they will spend the winter.

The Patriarchs.
The dance given by the Patriarchs Wednesday evening at the Lansing hall was the largest given by the club this season, and it was one of the most delightful events of the week. It being the last dance before Lent there was the usual gaiety that characterizes this season. A card with the name of some historical person or noted character in fiction was pinned on the back of each person present, and there was much amusement in the efforts to guess the name on one's back from the remarks of others. Mr. S. H. Burnham, for instance, was the Count of Monte Cristo, although he did not know it for some time. Miss Bertie Burr was Grace Darling. Mr. G. M. Lamberton was Tom Sawyer. Mr. D. G. Wing was Jay Gould. Miss Janet Underwood was Little Red Riding Hood. Mrs. C. F. Ladd was the Princess of Wales; Miss Sarah Harris was Boadicea; Mr. C. A. Hanna was Richelieu; Mrs. C. G. Mr. and Mrs. Lippincott Receive.
Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Lippincott were "at home" Tuesday evening. The reception was one of the largest and pleasantest of the season. Over two hundred people responded to invitations, and the handsome residence at Twenty-first and Washington streets was filled from half past eight till nearly twelve o'clock with a brilliant company. The house was beautifully decorated with a profusion of smilax, potted plants and cut flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Lippincott were assisted in receiving by Mrs. A. H. Wells, and the latter's daughters, Miss Wells and Miss Genevieve Wells, of Cincinnati. Mrs. Lippincott wore her wedding gown of white silk, the corsage finished with pink velvet and white lace, with pink gloves. Mrs. Wells wore a handsome black silk toilet with lace and jet trimmings. Miss Wells's gown was of pale green silk, with sleeves and trimmings of myrtle green velvet, with white lace; she wore green gloves with Gresian bands of pearls in her hair. Miss Genevieve Wells wore a becoming gown of pure white silk, shot with satin; the low corsage finished with a deep lace bertha. The pink room where was found the chocolate table, was decorated with exquisite taste, everything in the same color, down to the daintiest detail. The table was draped in pink silk and the pink candle shades only added to the beauty of the four charming young ladies who presided there, Miss Olive Latta, Miss Anne Funke, Miss Jeanette Wilson and Miss Mame Carson. They wore pink and white gowns. In the next room, where the decorations were in lavender, ice was served by Mrs. C. F. Ladd, Mrs. F. W. Little, Mrs. F. W. Brown and Mrs. A. G. Beeson. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers and potted plants, and presented a most entrancing appearance. Mrs. C. F. Ladd, Mrs. C. S. Lippincott, Mrs. F. W. Baldwin and Mrs. J. H. The Chitlarino club then followed with a string quartette of two guitars, a banjo and an autoharp. "Love's Old Sweet Song" was delightfully rendered by Miss Etta Oberlies. The Aeolian quartette then sang "Swanee River." The balance of the program included a selection by Mr. L. C.
